

IIM Ranchi concludes Young Changemakers Program

PNS : RANCHI

The Indian Institute of Management Ranchi concluded its Young Changemakers Programme (YCP) - Rural Immersion Bootcamp Global Edition with an inspiring valedictory ceremony, hosting participants from six countries and twenty states. The event had the Valedictory session with a keynote address by Padma Shree (2006) and Padma Bhushan (2020) Shri Anil Joshi and Award Distribution Ceremony and Closing Speech by Padma Shree (2015) Shri Ashok Bhagat.

Shri Joshi's address stressed sustainable resource management, highlighting the perils of shortsighted exploitation. He critiqued current practices contributing to soil degradation, water depletion, and pollution, advocating for an ecological growth measure akin to GDP for sustainable development.

In his poignant speech, Mr. Joshi highlighted the urgency of managing resources sustainably, emphasizing the need for a system that prioritizes responsible utilization. He lamented the shortsightedness of human intelligence, which often exploits resources without considering their interconnectedness with nature. Mr. Joshi concerned about current practices contributing to soil degradation, water depletion, and pollution, attributing blame to the commodification of natural resources and the unequal distribution exacerbating these challenges.

IIM ranchi YCP

Additionally, he highlighted the need for a shift in economic evaluation, suggesting an ecological growth measure akin to GDP, termed GEP (Gross Ecological Product), as a metric for sustainable development.

As the event unfolded, in recognition of extraordinary prowess and innovative problem-solving acumen, Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava and Mr. Anil Joshi bestowed the Programme Laureate Certificate upon Team Satva—comprising the erudite members Husain Nakhoda, Lekhana, Amartya Jayavel, Vaishnavi Swadha, Veeksha Kumaran.

Delivering his oration, Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava illuminated the audience with the unique nature of the YCP program and his desire to see it grow into a brighter future.

In a thought-provoking address, Mr. Bhagat advocated a return to our roots, urging a deeper exploration of Indian philosophy and the teachings of visionaries like Gandhi and Vivekananda. Emphasizing the essence of spirituality as a guiding force within society, he stressed that it doesn't entail isolation but rather serves as a compass, steering society towards righteousness. He lauded the Prime Minister for his efforts in upholding the rich tapestry of Indian culture, underscoring the importance of preserving and cherishing these foundational principles that resonate deeply within our heritage.

As the curtains descended on the proceedings, Prof. Gaurav Marathe expressed profound gratitude for the crescendo of a nascent idea into a bright initiative. The ceremony culminated in a poignant note of hope and aspiration.

IIM Ranchi concludes Young Changemakers Programme (YCP); Valedictory by Padma awardees

The valedictory session was addressed by Padma Shree (2006) and Padma Bhushan (2020) winner, Anil Joshi

Edex Live

A picture from the valedictory of Young Changemakers Programme (YCP).

---

The Indian Institute of Management (IIM) Ranchi concluded its Young Changemakers Programme (YCP) Rural Immersion Bootcamp Global

Edition with an inspiring valedictory ceremony, hosting participants from six countries and twenty states. As per the press release by the institute, the valedictory session was addressed by Padma Shree (2006) and Padma Bhushan (2020) awardee Anil Joshi while the award distribution ceremony and closing speech were given by Padma Shree awardee (2015) Ashok Bhagat.

Speaking on the occasion, Joshi stressed sustainable resource management highlighting the perils of shortsighted exploitation. Further, he critiqued current practices contributing to soil degradation, water depletion, and pollution, advocating for an ecological growth measure akin to GDP for sustainable development. Additionally, Joshi also highlighted the need for a shift in economic evaluation, suggesting an ecological growth measure akin to GDP (Gross Domestic Product), termed GEP (Gross Ecological Product), as a metric for sustainable development.

Similarly, Bhagat advocated a return to our roots, urging a deeper exploration of Indian philosophy and the teachings of visionaries like Gandhi and Vivekananda. Emphasising the essence of spirituality as a guiding force within society, he stressed that it doesn't entail isolation but rather serves as a compass, steering society towards righteousness, the press statement read.

IIM Ranchi Concludes Global Edition of the Young Changemakers Program

Campus Updates      24 Dec, 2023      1850

The Indian Institute of Management Ranchi concluded its Young Changemakers Programme (YCP) - Rural Immersion Bootcamp Global Edition with an inspiring valedictory ceremony, hosting participants from six countries and twenty states. The event had the Valedictory session with a keynote address by Padma Shree (2006) and Padma Bhushan (2020) Shri Anil Joshi and Award Distribution Ceremony and Closing Speech by Padma Shree (2015) Shri Ashok Bhagat.

Shri Joshi's address stressed sustainable resource management, highlighting the perils of shortsighted exploitation. He critiqued current practices contributing to soil degradation, water depletion, and pollution, advocating for an ecological growth measure akin to GDP for sustainable development.

In his poignant speech, Mr. Joshi highlighted the urgency of managing resources sustainably, emphasizing the need for a system that prioritizes responsible utilization. He lamented the shortsightedness of human intelligence, which often exploits resources without considering their interconnectedness with nature. Mr. Joshi concerned about current practices contributing to soil degradation, water depletion, and pollution, attributing blame to the commodification of natural resources and the unequal distribution exacerbating these challenges.

Additionally, he highlighted the need for a shift in economic evaluation, suggesting an ecological growth measure akin to GDP, termed GEP (Gross Ecological Product), as a metric for sustainable development.

As the event unfolded, in recognition of extraordinary prowess and innovative problem-solving acumen, Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava and Mr. Anil Joshi bestowed the Programme Laureate Certificate upon Team Satva—comprising the erudite members Husain Nakhoda, Lekhana, Amartya Jayavel, Vaishnavi Swadha, Veeksha Kumaran.

Delivering his oration, Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava illuminated the audience with the unique nature of the YCP program and his desire to see it grow into a brighter future.

In a thought-provoking address, Mr. Bhagat advocated a return to our roots, urging a deeper exploration of Indian philosophy and the teachings of visionaries like Gandhi and Vivekananda. Emphasizing the essence of spirituality as a guiding force within society, he stressed that it doesn't entail isolation but rather serves as a compass, steering society towards righteousness. He lauded the Prime Minister for his efforts in upholding the rich tapestry of Indian culture, underscoring the importance of preserving and cherishing these foundational principles that resonate deeply within our heritage.

As the curtains descended on the proceedings, Prof. Gaurav Marathe expressed profound gratitude for the crescendo of a nascent idea into a bright initiative. The ceremony culminated in a poignant note of hope and aspiration.

Lens Eye News

Sunday 24 December 2023

IIM Ranchi Concludes Global Edition of the Young Changemakers Program

Ranchi, December 24, 2023: The Indian Institute of Management Ranchi concluded its Young Changemakers Programme (YCP) - Rural Immersion Bootcamp Global Edition with an inspiring valedictory ceremony, hosting participants from six countries and twenty states. The event had the Valedictory session with a keynote address by Padma Shree (2006) and Padma Bhushan (2020) Shri Anil Joshi and Award Distribution Ceremony and Closing Speech by Padma Shree (2015) Shri Ashok Bhagat.

Shri Joshi's address stressed sustainable resource management, highlighting the perils of shortsighted exploitation. He critiqued current practices contributing to soil degradation, water depletion, and pollution, advocating for an ecological growth measure akin to GDP for sustainable development.

In his poignant speech, Mr. Joshi highlighted the urgency of managing resources sustainably, emphasizing the need for a system that prioritizes responsible utilization. He lamented the shortsightedness of human intelligence, which often exploits resources without considering their interconnectedness with nature. Mr. Joshi concerned about current practices contributing to soil degradation, water depletion, and pollution, attributing blame to the commodification of natural resources and the unequal distribution exacerbating these challenges.

Additionally, he highlighted the need for a shift in economic evaluation, suggesting an ecological growth measure akin to GDP, termed GEP (Gross Ecological Product), as a metric for sustainable development.

As the event unfolded, in recognition of extraordinary prowess and innovative problem-solving acumen, Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava and Mr. Anil Joshi bestowed the Programme Laureate Certificate upon Team Satva—comprising the erudite members Husain Nakhoda, Lekhana, Amartya Jayavel, Vaishnavi Swadha, Veeksha Kumaran.

Delivering his oration, Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava illuminated the audience with the unique nature of the YCP program and his desire to see it grow into a brighter future.

In a thought-provoking address, Mr. Bhagat advocated a return to our roots, urging a deeper exploration of Indian philosophy and the teachings of visionaries like Gandhi and Vivekananda. Emphasizing the essence of spirituality as a guiding force within society, he stressed that it doesn't entail isolation but rather serves as a compass, steering society towards righteousness. He lauded the Prime Minister for his efforts in upholding the rich tapestry of Indian culture, underscoring the importance of preserving and cherishing these foundational principles that resonate deeply within our heritage.

As the curtains descended on the proceedings, Prof. Gaurav Marathe expressed profound gratitude for the crescendo of a nascent idea into a bright initiative. The ceremony culminated in a poignant note of hope and aspiration.

British Deputy High Commissioner participated in Young Change Makers Programme at IIM Ranchi

By Correspondent

1
3 Ranchi: IIM Ranchi started
5 the global edition of the 7 Young Changemakers
9 Program (YCP) Rural
11 Immersion Bootcamp, a
13 transformative initiative
15 aimed at fostering
17 multifaceted development
19 among aspiring students.

21 With a vision of 23 comprehensive and

25 multidimensional growth, the YCP gathered a pool of exceptional talent from six different countries and twenty states, attracting over 3000 enthusiastic aspirants.

Following a rigorous selection process, 80
outstanding individuals were chosen to partake in this exceptional educational venture. Prof. Gaurav
Manohar Marathe of IIM
Ranchi presented the idea behind the programme.

Reporter Post_22.12.2023_Pg. 03

IIM-R unveils Global Edition of Young Changemakers Program

PNS : RANCHI

IIM Ranchi inaugurated the global edition of the Young Changemakers Program (YCP) Rural Immersion Bootcamp, a transformative initiative aimed at fostering multifaceted development among aspiring students. With a vision of comprehensive and multidimensional growth, the YCP gathered a pool of exceptional talent from six different countries and twenty states, attracting over 3000 enthusiastic aspirants. Following a rigorous selection process, 80 outstanding individuals were chosen to partake in this exceptional educational venture.

Prof. Gaurav Manohar Marathe, Chairperson, Social Impact Committee, IIM Ranchi presented the idea behind the programme. The idea is centered on enabling participants to visit villages, immerse themselves in first-hand experiential learning, and collectively brainstorm solutions for real-world challenges. An extension of the Harvard model of case study, the Young Changemakers Program is the first of its kind live case study method of learning introduced by IIM

Ranchi.

Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava, the Director of IIM Ranchi, extended his heartfelt congratulations to the selected YCP students. Recognizing the limitations of conventional education systems in preparing students for real-world challenges, YCP emerges as a catalyst for instilling social intelligence and cultural awareness. The venue was also honoured by the august presence of Dr. Andrew Fleming, British Deputy High Commissioner to East & North East India, the Chief Guest. He highlighted the incredible diversity across India's 28 states, equating each state's uniqueness to that of different countries. He reminisced about his school days and the challenges he encountered, underscoring the profound changes he witnessed during his stay in India.

IIM Ranchi Inaugurates Global Edition of the Young Changemakers Program

Campus Updates      21 Dec, 2023      91

IIM Ranchi inaugurated the global edition of the Young Changemakers Program (YCP) Rural Immersion Bootcamp, a transformative initiative aimed at fostering multifaceted development among aspiring students. With a vision of comprehensive and multidimensional growth, the YCP gathered a pool of exceptional talent from six different countries and twenty states, attracting over 3000 enthusiastic aspirants. Following a rigorous selection process, 80 outstanding individuals were chosen to partake in this exceptional educational venture.

Prof. Gaurav Manohar Marathe, Chairperson, Social Impact Committee, IIM Ranchi presented the idea behind the programme. The idea is centered on enabling participants to visit villages, immerse themselves in first-hand experiential learning, and collectively brainstorm solutions for real-world challenges. An extension of the Harvard model of case study, the Young Changemakers Program is the first of its kind live case study method of learning introduced by IIM Ranchi.

Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava, the esteemed Director of IIM Ranchi, extended his heartfelt congratulations to the selected YCP students. Recognizing the limitations of conventional education systems in preparing students for real-world challenges, YCP emerges as a catalyst for instilling social intelligence and cultural awareness.

The venue was also honored by the august presence of Dr. Andrew Fleming, British Deputy High Commissioner to East & North East India, the Chief Guest. He highlighted the incredible diversity across India's 28 states, equating each state's uniqueness to that of different countries. He reminisced about his school days and the challenges he encountered, underscoring the profound changes he witnessed during his stay in India.

The session culminated with an empowering address by Risav Ganguli and Himani Shah, the last year's YCP winners, emphasizing that the program augments one's candidacy beyond a mere certificate.

The Young Changemakers Program at IIM Ranchi stands as a testament to nurturing future leaders, fostering empathy, and equipping them with the skills needed for a diverse and dynamic global landscape.

Campus Varta_21.12.2023_online

IIM Ranchi Inaugurates Global Edition of the Young Changemakers Program

Ranchi: IIM Ranchi inaugurated the global edition of the Young Changemakers Program (YCP) Rural Immersion Bootcamp, a transformative initiative aimed at fostering multifaceted development among aspiring students. With a vision of comprehensive and multidimensional growth, the YCP gathered a pool of exceptional talent from six different countries and twenty states, attracting over 3000 enthusiastic aspirants. Following a rigorous selection process, 80 outstanding individuals were chosen to partake in this exceptional educational venture.

Prof. Gaurav Manohar Marathe, Chairperson, Social Impact Committee, IIM Ranchi presented the idea behind the programme. The idea is centered on enabling participants to visit villages, immerse themselves in first-hand experiential learning, and collectively brainstorm solutions for real-world challenges. An extension of the Harvard model of case study, the Young Changemakers Program is the first of its kind live case study method of learning introduced by IIM Ranchi.

Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava, the esteemed Director of IIM Ranchi, extended his heartfelt congratulations to the selected YCP students. Recognizing the limitations of conventional education systems in preparing students for real-world challenges, YCP emerges as a catalyst for instilling social intelligence and cultural awareness.

The venue was also honored by the august presence of Dr. Andrew Fleming, British Deputy High Commissioner to East & North East India, the Chief Guest. He highlighted the incredible diversity across India's 28 states, equating each state's uniqueness to that of different countries. He reminisced about his school days and the challenges he encountered, underscoring the profound changes he witnessed during his stay in India.

The session culminated with an empowering address by Risav Ganguli and Himani Shah, the last year's YCP winners, emphasizing that the program augments one's candidacy beyond a mere certificate.

The Young Changemakers Program at IIM Ranchi stands as a testament to nurturing future leaders, fostering empathy, and equipping them with the skills needed for a diverse and dynamic global landscape.

DEC
21
2023

British Deputy High Commissioner participated in Young Change Makers Programme at IIM Ranchi

newsjw3m Top Story

Ranchi: IIM Ranchi started the global edition of the Young Changemakers Program (YCP) Rural Immersion Bootcamp, a transformative initiative aimed at fostering multifaceted development among aspiring students.

With a vision of comprehensive and multidimensional growth, the YCP gathered a pool of exceptional talent from six different countries and twenty states, attracting over 3000 enthusiastic aspirants. Following a rigorous selection process, 80 outstanding individuals were chosen to partake in this exceptional educational venture.

Prof. Gaurav Manohar Marathe of IIM Ranchi presented the idea behind the programme. The idea is centered on enabling participants to visit villages, immerse themselves in first-hand experiential learning, and collectively Brainstorm solutions for real-world challenges. An extension of the Harvard model of case study, the Young Changemakers Program is the first of its kind live case study method of learning introduced by IIM Ranchi.

Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava, Director of IIM Ranchi, extended his heartfelt congratulations to the selected YCP students. Recognizing the limitations of conventional education systems in preparing students for real-world challenges, YCP emerges as a catalyst for instilling social intelligence and cultural awareness.

Dr. Andrew Fleming, British Deputy High Commissioner to East & North East India was the Chief Guest. He highlighted the incredible diversity across India's 28 states, equating each state's uniqueness to that of different countries. He reminisced about his school days and the challenges he encountered, underscoring the profound changes he witnessed during his stay in India.

The Young Changemakers Program at IIM Ranchi stands as a testament to nurturing future leaders, fostering empathy, and equipping them with the skills needed for a diverse and dynamic global landscape.

Newsjharkhand_21.12.2023_Online

IIM Ranchi Inaugurates Global Edition of the Young Changemakers Program

DECEMBER 21, 2023

IIM Ranchi inaugurated the global edition of the Young Changemakers Program (YCP) Rural Immersion Bootcamp, a transformative initiative aimed at fostering multifaceted development among aspiring students. With a vision of comprehensive and multidimensional growth, the YCP gathered a pool of exceptional talent from six different countries and twenty states, attracting over 3000 enthusiastic aspirants. Following a rigorous selection process, 80 outstanding individuals were chosen to partake in this exceptional educational venture.

Prof. Gaurav Manohar Marathe, Chairperson, Social Impact Committee, IIM Ranchi presented the idea behind the programme. The idea is centered on enabling participants to visit villages, immerse themselves in first-hand experiential learning, and collectively brainstorm solutions for real-world challenges. An extension of the Harvard model of case study, the Young Changemakers Program is the first of its kind live case study method of learning introduced by IIM Ranchi.

Prof. Deepak Kumar Srivastava, the esteemed Director of IIM Ranchi, extended his heartfelt congratulations to the selected YCP students. Recognizing the limitations of conventional education systems in preparing students for real-world challenges, YCP emerges as a catalyst for instilling social intelligence and cultural awareness.

The venue was also honored by the august presence of Dr. Andrew Fleming, British Deputy High Commissioner to East & North East India, the Chief Guest. He highlighted the incredible diversity across India's 28 states, equating each state's uniqueness to that of different countries.

He reminisced about his school days and the challenges he encountered, underscoring the profound changes he witnessed during his stay in India.

The session culminated with an empowering address by Risav Ganguli and Himani Shah, the last year's YCP winners, emphasizing that the program augments one's candidacy beyond a mere certificate.

The Young Changemakers Program at IIM Ranchi stands as a testament to nurturing future leaders, fostering empathy, and equipping them with the skills needed for a diverse and dynamic global landscape.

The India Looks_21.12.2023_Online